Humar, Pathos, Passion, Virtue and Vice Exposed in Small "Ada"—The Experi-ence of a Crank—The Resovery of Stolen Property.

[Special Chicago Letter.] Have you ever thought of how natural It is to have recourse to the advertising pages of newspapers? When you want help or when you need anything out of the ordinary you appeal to your fellow men through the columns of a journal whose circulation justifies the expense The time was when you would have gone from one of your acquaintances to the other repeating your tale of woe Now you simply walk into the counting cents and leave with the assurance that the next day you will receive twenty of more replies to your announcement Just now the city of Chicago is filled to overflowing with men and women is search of employment. From every where wage-workers are pouring in many of them absolutely penniless. The latter, of course, drift into the of fices of the charitable institutions and employment agencies, but those who have enough money to live a month or so without work make a bee line for the nearest newspaper office and insert a notice in the next issue stating their wants. From day to day-until their money is exhausted—they repeat this operation. Then they haunt the publication rooms to peruse the columns de voted to "help wanted," and write hun dreds of replies which hardly ever produce results.

To me one of the most pathetic sights is the army of unemployed who watch for the publication of the afternoon papers as though their last hope or earth were centered upon the climics of finding what they want in the closely printed pages of the one-cent sheets Every line is studied with intense in torest. When the render finds some thing that strikes him favorably, he will mark it with a pencil and disappear in the office to write a reply. Hope and expectation are pictured on his countenauce, and although he has answered advertisements every day for weeks or bound for tolling in a cheap boarding thost ruined the poor fellow, but proves that it is a find the interest month."—N. It is an agony whose polgnancy is beyond description. But, strange to say, al-though thousands have experienced the neusation, as soon as they have secured a comfortable position they pass later sufferers by without a word of cheer or acouragement. of his sad philosophy. But there are more pleasing features don't you, not compulsion?

Best—Well, I think there was son paper. One of them came under my observation lately. A hearthroken old Press. lady had inserted a notice in the persomal columns of a Sunday paper ask ing for information about her son who ad disappeared from home many years before. She had employed detectives to trace the whereabouts of her wandering boy, but with the usual result. The sleuths pocketed their per diem and supplied their employer with neatly arranged "reports." A friend advised the mother to try the newspapers. She spent four dollars in small notices, which were published in the Chicago New York and San Francisco newspapers, without expecting a return, how ever. Great was her astonishment when she received a letter from her son. dated at Yokohama, in which he told her that he had seen her notice and would be in Chicago two weeks later. I happened to be at the railroad station when the two were remnited, and had to listen to a somewhat lengthy enlogy on the power of the press pronounced by a friend of the harny family.

Typographical blunders in small advertisements frequently cause considerable ammement. A young married man, who had more than his share of annoyance with the servant girl probtem, was persuaded by his wife to insert a notice in one of the afternoon papers for the fifteeeth or sixteenth time during his short cureer as a Benediet. While chatting with the man in the counting room he learned that a nart advertisement could be inserted six consecutive days at a greatly reduced cost. In view of previous usual isfantery results from single insertions be paid for a week and left an announcement to this effect: "Wanted a Rievator Ray-Cortainty!
